

WRITING FROM MEMORY

An 8-week immersive workshop for writers of fiction and nonfiction, hosted by Craig Lancaster

- Weekly Zoom get-togethers
- Weekly freewriting exercises
- Group workshopping
- Limited to six participants to ensure individualized attention
- One-on-one feedback from the workshop leader
- Cost: $350
- Weekly craft discussions

*Craig Lancaster is the award-winning author of nine novels, including the bestselling 600 Hours of Edward, and a collection of short stories. His essays and journalism have appeared widely in print and online.*

Workshop begins Thursday, Jan. 6, 2022, and runs weekly through Feb. 24
For more information and to register, visit: www.craig-lancaster.com/workshop

So you're considering enrolling, but you have questions. Here are some answers:

Writing from memory. What does that mean? Some of the best, most intimate, most powerful writing begins with a burst of memory. It fuels fiction and nonfiction alike. When writing techniques are applied to that harvesting of memory, magic happens. That's what we'll be delving into in this workshop.

What will I get out of it? You will be in a workshop environment that works best for those who participate in the discussions and activities. You'll be expected to write weekly, to submit your writing to Craig and, on occasion, to the others in the group. You'll learn how to receive and give feedback. And you'll probably make some new friends.

$350 is a lot of dough. Why should I invest it? It's two months of intensive writing work, with feedback from the author of several well-regarded books and from your peers in the group. And the cost is extremely competitive with other workshops of its kind.

Who is this Lancaster guy and why is he qualified to host this workshop? Craig is the author of nine novels, including several bestsellers, and a collection of short stories. He's a longtime journalist and editor, a former visiting writer at Chemeketa College in Oregon and at Montana State University Billings. He's on the masthead of Montana Quarterly, one of the finest regional magazines in the country.

I'm sold. Where do I sign up? Right here!